PRESIDENTIAL GREATNESS PROJECT
A Joint Project of Professors Brandon Rottinghaus (University of Houston) and Justin Vaughn (Coastal Carolina University) The 2024 Presidential Greatness Project Expert Survey was conducted online via Qualtrics from November 15 to December 31, 2023. Respondents included current and recent members of the Presidents & Executive Politics Section of the American Political Science Association, which is the foremost organization of social science experts in presidential politics, as well as scholars who had recently published peer-reviewed academic research in key related scholarly journals or academic presses. 525 respondents were invited to participate, and 154 usable responses were received, yielding a 29.3% response rate. The primary purpose of this survey was to create a ranking of presidential greatness that covered all presidents from George Washington to Joe Biden. To do this, we asked respondents to rate each president on a scale of 0-100 for their overall greatness, with 0=failure, 50=average, and 100=great. We then averaged the ratings for each president and ranked them from highest average to lowest.

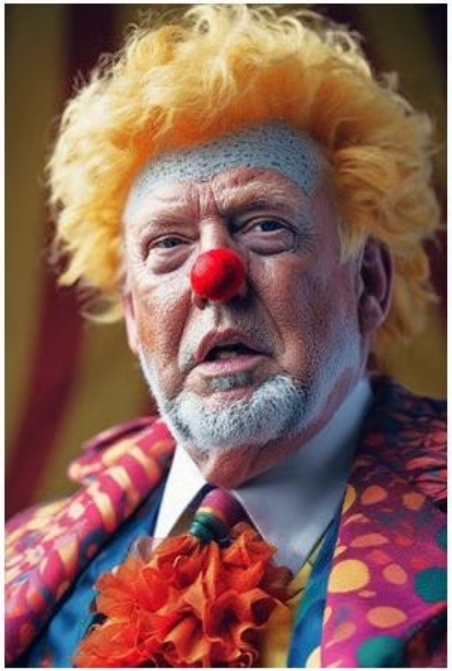
Megalomania, grandiosity, hubris or delusions of grandeur, is a psychiatric symptom that manifests itself in elevated self-esteem, a delusion in which a person has a highly unrealistic self-perception and sees themselves as specially chosen or destined for great deeds. Megalomania can be a sign of psychosis or a personality disorder.



Some may see Donald Trump as a Clown. Scary to some and funny to others. But actually really dangerous and quite far from being a Clown. The same mistake was made in 1932 in Germany and Hitler was very dangerous, but some did not take him seriously, a real Clown.

Donald Trump acts like a Mafia Boss, some say. The capital he and his family have received since he took office as President in 2025 probably contains many millions of Korruprion's money. An expensive airplane has also been mentioned and cryptocurrency. Trump also takes revenge as the mafia usually does Donald Trump is acting like a criminal, some say, and they are right. 34 convictions have been issued and Donald Trump is the only US President to have been elected as a convicted criminal. New crimes have been committed, such as crimes against the laws of war and crimes against humanity.

Donald Trump has now passed the average life expectancy for a man in the United States. He also has an increased risk of being assassinated and Four presidents have been assassinated. Trump has had an assassination attempt on him.

Beer Hall Putsch

was a failed coup d'état by Nazi Party leader Adolf Hitler, General Erich Ludendorff and other Kampfbund leaders in Munich, Bavaria, on 8–9 November 1923, during the period of the Weimar Republic. Inspired by Benito Mussolini's March on Rome, Hitler's goal was to use Munich as a base for a march against Germany's national government in Berlin.

On January 6, 2021, the United States Capitol in Washington, D.C., was attacked by a mob of supporters of President Donald Trump in an attempted self-coup, two months after his defeat in the 2020 presidential election. They sought to keep him in power by preventing a joint session of Congress from counting the Electoral College votes to formalize the victory of then president-elect Joe Biden. The attack was unsuccessful in preventing the certification of the election results. According to the bipartisan House select committee that investigated the incident, the attack was the culmination of a plan by Trump to overturn the election. five people died: one was shot by the Capitol Police, another died of a drug overdose, and three died of natural causes, including a police officer who died of a stroke a day after.

Donald Trump is a convicted felon in 34 different cases. He has not yet been in prison. He is using his power and violating the Constitution. People who have permission to stay in the United States have been imprisoned and without receiving legal representation. Some have also been deported on the wrong grounds and to very dangerous prison camps in South America. Trump has violated 100 laws regarding human rights. The military and ICE are used as police and they use excessive force against the population. Pepper spray, tear gas and physical violence against women, children and the disabled. Breaking people down, sitting on them. Helicopter raids where the residents of entire buildings are imprisoned without any real basis. Trump uses strategies like Putin with invented crimes without evidence and to get revenge. Trump issues decrees and cancels already granted funds that the Senate has decided on. The president does not have the right to unilaterally revoke already legislative decisions on appropriations. Trump's crimes are recorded continuously. But the Supreme Court in the United States has begun to rule questionably according to the Constitution. For example, when it comes to sending soldiers to different cities to perform police duties that regular police are there for.

Across Trump's four indictments, he has been charged with a total of 88 criminal counts. As of December 10, 2024, he has been found guilty of 34 criminal counts and 44 charges were dismissed.

On May 30, 2024, a Manhattan jury found former President Donald Trump (R) guilty of 34 counts of falsifying business records in the first degree, making Trump the first U.S. president to ever be indicted on and convicted of felony crimes after his time in office. Trump's sentencing took place on January 10, 2025. Trump responded to the sentence, saying, "The Radical Democrats have lost another pathetic, un American Witch Hunt." Trump said he would appeal the ruling. Trump's legal team can file a notice of appeal within 30 days of his sentencing date, and the appeal would be heard by a New York Appellate Division court. Federal indictment (2020 election certification case

A federal grand jury charged former President Donald Trump (R) with four criminal counts related to the certification of the 2020 presidential election in August 2023. Trump pleaded not guilty. Judge Tanya S. Chutkan oversaw the proceedings.

The original indictment was filed in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. It included the following charges alleged against Trump:
conspiracy to defraud the United States "by using dishonesty, fraud and deceit to obstruct the nation's process of collecting, counting, and certifying the results of the presidential election;"
conspiracy to obstruct the certification of the electoral vote on January 6, 2021;
obstruction of the certification of the electoral vote on January 6, 2021; and conspiracy "to injure, oppress, threaten, and intimidate one or more persons in the free exercise and enjoyment of" the right to vote and have one's vote counted.

In July 2024, the Supreme Court ruled on Trump's claim of presidential immunity in the case, saying in a 6-3 decision written by Chief Justice John Roberts that presidents have absolute immunity for core constitutional powers and no immunity for unofficial actions. The case was remanded to a lower court to determine which charges in the indictment could proceed.[79] Smith released a superseding indictment on August 27, 2024, which maintained the same charges against Trump with an adjusted presentation to adhere to the Supreme Court's ruling.

Georgia indictment

Former President Donald Trump (R) was indicted on 13 criminal charges related to interference in the 2020 presidential election results in Georgia. Trump pleaded not guilty on August 31. Judge Scott McAfee struck three of these charges for lack of specificity on March 13, 2024, and struck an additional two charges based on the U.S. Constitution's Supremacy Clause on September 12, 2024.

Deportation and Detention of Student Protesters and Foreign Scholars

Action: In 2025, the Trump administration expanded its use of immigration enforcement to target foreign nationals, particularly students, researchers, and legal residents—some for accused of engaging in, or merely being adjacent to pro-Palestinian activism, some without any explanation at all. While the administration cites national security and antisemitism concerns, many of those detained or threatened with deportation have not been accused of any criminal behavior. The crackdown appears designed to chill speech and dissent on college campuses.

Key examples include:

Mahmoud Khalil, a legal permanent resident and Columbia University student, was arrested in March without access to counsel and sent to a detention center in El Paso.

Yunseo Chung, a Columbia undergraduate and green card holder, was targeted by ICE using a pretextual arrest warrant; a federal judge later stayed her deportation.

Rümeysa Öztürk, a Turkish Fulbright scholar at Tufts, was detained after co-authoring a student editorial; she was released on bond after a media outcry.

Kseniia Petrova, a Russian biomedical researcher at Harvard Medical School, was detained by ICE despite no involvement in protests. Her colleagues say she was targeted solely due to her visa status and association with student groups under investigation.

Ranjani Srinivasan, an Indian national at Columbia, had her visa revoked and chose to self-deport to avoid further legal jeopardy. She was not alleged to have broken any laws.

Jan. 6 lawsuits
While the criminal federal election interference case against Trump over the Jan. 6, 2021, riot at the U.S. Capitol has been dismissed, he's still facing eight related civil suits from law enforcement personnel who were injured in the attack and some Democratic members of Congress.
A Quinnipiac University poll this week showed voters agreed 52%-38% that Trump was "using the U.S. Justice Department to file unjustified criminal charges against his political opponents."
A Reuters-Ipsos poll, meanwhile, showed Americans said 55%-26% that Trump was using federal law enforcement to go after his enemies. Even 29% of Republicans agreed with this. just 38% of voters in the Quinnipiac poll said the charges against Trump's opponents were justified, Americans generally said by clear, double-digit margins that the cases against Trump were legitimate – and even that he was guilty. (Trump pleaded not guilty in all cases against him.) Americans said 56%-41% that the investigations against Trump were "fair" rather than a "witch hunt," according to a March 2023 Marist College poll conducted shortly before his first indictment. Indeed, Americans seem much more inclined to believe that about the cases Trump is orchestrating against his foes.
President Donald Trump's pressure campaign to have the Justice Department indict former adviser John Bolton, New York Attorney General Letitia James and former FBI Director James Comey is the latest salvo in what critics call a campaign of retribution. Former Trump national security adviser John Bolton was indicted Oct. 16 on charges that he allegedly unlawfully transmitted and retained classified documents. Comey was indicted on Sept. 25 on charges of making a false statement and obstruction related to his testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee in 2020, just days after President Donald Trump issued a public demand for his Justice Department to act "now" to bring prosecutions against Comey and other political foes. The former FBI head pleaded not guilty at his arraignment.

Letitia James, New York attorney general

James was indicted on Oct. 9 on at one count of bank fraud and one count of making false statements to a financial institution after Halligan presented allegations to a federal grand jury that James had committed mortgage fraud related to a home she purchased in 2020. James, who brought a $454 million civil fraud case against Trump, has been labeled, without evidence, a "corrupt attorney general" by Trump, whose ousting of Siebert came after sources say Siebert declined to bring a criminal case against James following a five-month investigation.

Chris Christie, former New Jersey governor

Christie, an ABC News contributor, was an early supporter of Trump's 2016 presidential campaign and served as the head of his transition team, though he has since become one of the president's fiercest critics. Trump in August threatened to investigate Christie over an old political scandal related to the closure of a lane on the George Washington Bridge in order to retaliate against a political opponent.

Adam Schiff, United States senator

Schiff, who served as the lead manager during the first impeachment trial of President Trump in 2019, is being investigated by the DOJ for alleged insurance fraud related to a property in Maryland after Attorney General Pam Bondi named Martin as a special prosecutor in the probe.

Jack Smith, former special counsel

Smith, who led the classified documents and Jan. 6 investigations into Trump, is being investigated by the U.S. Office of Special Counsel over whether his probes violated the Hatch Act, which limits the political activities of federal employees.

Miles Taylor, former chief of staff of the U.S. Department of Homeland Security

Taylor, who authored an anonymous op-ed in The New York Times in 2019 claiming that "senior officials in his own administration are working diligently from within to frustrate parts of [Trump's] agenda and his worst inclinations," is being investigated after Trump signed an executive order in April directing the Secretary of Homeland Security to "review Miles Taylor's activities as a Government employee" and submit a record with "recommendations for appropriate remedial or preventative actions to be taken to protect America's interests."

Christopher Krebs, former director of the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency

Krebs, who was fired by Trump in 2002 when Krebs contradicted Trump's false claims about election fraud following the 2020 election, is the subject of a probe after Trump signed an executive order in April directing the attorney general and the secretary of Homeland Security to conduct a review to "identify any instances where Krebs' conduct appears to have been contrary to suitability standards for Federal employees, [or] involved the unauthorized dissemination of classified information."

How to remove Adolf Hitler 1933

When Hitler came to power legally through the 1932 election victory and in 1933 illegally staged a coup d'état and established a dictatorship, military intervention would have been required to remove him from power. That was the only chance. It was not taken. So why does anyone think that it is not needed for a would-be dictator in the United States?

Conclusion: The Legacy of Authoritarianism and Its Implications

The legacies of Hitler, Stalin, and Mussolini, as well as the contemporary concerns surrounding leaders like Putin and Trump, serve as a stark reminder of the potential dangers posed by authoritarian figures. The support they garner and the impact they have on global security and peace continue to be subjects of intense scrutiny and debate.

U.S. President Donald Trump receives mostly negative ratings in a new Pew Research Center survey of 24 nations. More than half in 19 of these countries say they lack confidence in Trump's leadership of world affairs.
Majorities in most countries also express little or no confidence in Trump's ability to handle specific issues, including immigration, the Russia-Ukraine war, U.S.-China relations, global economic problems, conflicts between Israel and its neighbors, and climate change.

History repeats itself. It usually only takes 70 to 100 years, and grandchildren and great-grandchildren are at risk of making almost the same mistakes as their older relatives. In Germany in 1923, Adolf Hitler and his criminal gang of Nazis tried to seize power in the Weimar Republic of Germany. It was historically repeated in the United States in 2021. Donald Trump single-handedly created a stir remotely and, like the Nazis, manipulated the sufficiently uncritical. The people certainly have a core of people who believe what a charismatic leader says. They have already made up their minds before he has even spoken. Adolf Hitler and Donald Trump came from completely different backgrounds. Adolf from a home where his father abused him every week and his mother comforted Adolf and convinced him that he was destined for something great in the future.

How could it go so wrong?

Adolf Hitler was a corporal during World War I, while Donald Trump and his father obtained a fake medical certificate stating that Donald Trump had a heel spur and the certificate exempted Donald from his obligation to serve in the Vietnam War. Father Frank and Donald already committed a criminal act there. The crimes are written off, but not the story that it was a crime. Father Frank trained Donald in the real estate business. In return, Donald received lessons in Racism. The real estate company disadvantaged people of color and was noticed for this.
As a child, Donald had shown early signs of his chronic sociopathy. At the age of five, he threw a rock at a sleeping baby and at eight, he punched a teacher in the eye with his fist.
Donald's schooling was fraught with problems and many delays. DT became his nickname.

Hitler came to power in 1933 and after a short time Germany was transformed into a dictatorship. In 1932 Hitler received 33.1% of the votes in a democratic election. But the SA troops had influenced the election with their threats, where they were seen in their brown uniforms.

Donald Trump won the 2014 election but received 2.8 million fewer votes than Hillary Clinton. The election was rigged with the help of Russia. Trump was already a Russian agent since 1987 by the name of Krasnov. Russia managed to get him elected.

How could it go so wrong?

Hitler learned to come to power through democratic elections and then he got power over the army and the police. He then invented a crisis, when he easily burned down the government building in Berlin and found a guilty communist. This required new laws that were invented and which meant that Germany's democracy was replaced with a dictatorship.

Donald Trump almost completely followed Adolf Hitler's methods of taking power
